S-Senate approves allocations

By Mike Springston
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Student Senate approved the Fee Allocation Committee report Tuesday night allocating $180,000 to 60 organizations for the 1976-77 academic year.

Six groups were denied funds during the senate's special meeting.

The Student Government Activity Council received the largest allocation, $65,230, an increase of $4,955 from last year.

Student Government received a budget of $32,129.51. An additional $5,000 was allocated to the Student Senate Special Projects Funds and $11,795 went into the Student Organizations Activity Fund (SOAF).

Large allocations also went to the Black Activities Council (BAC), $19,209.50; WIDB, $15,235.35; Inter-Greek Council, $8,807.63, and the Illinois Public Interest Research Group, $7,794.22.

The senate denied a BAC request for more money at the special meeting, upholding the allocation committee's recommendation.

Eddie Bennett, BAC coordinator, said the additional funding was needed for salaries and phone services.

The only alteration of the committee's recommendations the senate made was to transfer $205 from SOAF to the Southern Illinois Veterans Association so that the organization could start a newsletter.

Three attempts were made to reduce the $2,255 allocation that went to the nonSequitur magazine.

Ford studies change in campaign strategy

WASHINGTON (AP)—Trailing in committed delegates and battered by four successive primary defeats, President Ford sought on Wednesday to find an election strategy that can throttle Ronald Reagan and save Ford the Republican nomination.

A chorus of congressional and staff advisers told Ford he must do better at emphasizing administration accomplishments and quit being diverted by Reagan's attacks on such issues as the Panama Canal.

But the challenging former California governor, stumping in Nebraska for votes in that state's primary next Tuesday, kept up his drumfire on the canal question and national defense.

Reagan's delegate sweeps in Georgia and Alabama on Tuesday were capped by a narrow popular vote victory but impressive delegate harvest in Indiana. Reagan won decisively in Texas on Saturday, but Indiana was his first primary victory in a non-Southern or Southwestern state.

The triple triumph catapulted him into the lead for national convention delegates over Ford, 360-292. Another 329 are uncommitted. The distance the race has to go is illustrated by the fact that 1,130 votes will be required for nomination at the national convention in Kansas City this August.

On the Democratic side, the Tuesday results were nearly as impressive for Jimmy Carter as for Reagan: he swept his home state of Georgia, won the bulk of Indiana delegates, and led in the District of Columbia, where no GOP contest was held. Carter lost only in Alabama, where Gov. George C. Wallace salvaged at least home state support for his sagging campaign.

Carter's victories emphasized his status as the Democratic front-runner. Ford, though in the position of incumbent, found himself in second place, at least in terms of delegate count.

He told a news conference, however:

"We think it's going to be a tough race but we expect to win."

Asked if he anticipated a first-ballot victory, Ford simply said: "I think we'll go to Kansas City and win."

Asked later why Ford did not say he would win on the first ballot, White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said: "If he didn't, he meant to."

The President, after meeting with GOP leaders and his campaign manager, Rogers C.B. Morton, said Morton would conduct a campaign strategy reassessment.

Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Ford's campaign schedule, the issues he takes up in public speeches, and the forums he should use during the balance of the campaign all would be discussed.

Senate GOP leaders Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania and Robert P. Griffin of Michigan said Ford was advised to change his strategy.

Griffin said Ford has "found himself on the defensive a great deal. I don't think he should be using so much of his time answering Mr. Reagan."

A hallmark of Ford's campaigning has been question-and-answer sessions with large groups of citizens. The questions often have obviously been inspired by Reagan campaign statements.

Ford is expected to rely more on set speeches where he can better control the topics raised.

The President told reporters Wednesday he believes his winning issues are peace and foreign policy, economic recovery and restoration of trust and confidence in the presidency and executive branch of government.

He said he did not think Reagan's challenge of Panama Canal policy was a "legitimate issue."

Aside from issues, a major logistical problem facing the Ford campaign is what to do about Democratic voters crossing party lines to vote for Reagan in GOP primaries.

With the fading of Wallace's campaign, numbers of conservative Democrats who backed the Alabama governor apparently are now switching to Reagan.

The Californian is welcoming their support, noting that any Republican nominee must attract support outside the minority party to win the November election.

City sees week's second power outage

By Ken Temkin
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A power outage left Evergreen Terrace, University Farms and areas south and west of the SIU campus without electrical service Wednesday for the second blackout in Carbondale this week.

The latest outage was apparently caused when a construction crew of a private contractor short circuited power transmission lines between Carbondale and Marion, said Bob Stein, district office manager for the Egyptian Electric Cooperative Association, which owns the lines.

Stein said the contractors were stringing new wires across the cooperative's transmission lines when the short circuit occurred.

No injuries were reported as a result of the incident, and power was completely restored by 1:50 p.m. after lasting an hour and 45 minutes, Stein said.

Service was restored to most of the cooperative's customers by 1:30 p.m., Stein said.

Although he could not estimate how many persons were affected, Stein said three of the company's five area substations experienced a power loss.

In another blackout, this past weekend portions of Carbondale and four other Jackson County communities were left without power after an owl short circuited two electrical phases at one of the Central Illinois Public Service Company's area substations Sunday, said James O'Daniel, district superintendent for the company.

Desoto, Elkville, Dowell and Vergennes were without power from 4:30 to 5:24 a.m., and Carbondale's outage lasted from 4:30 to 5:13 a.m., O'Daniel said.

Doctors Memorial Hospital was without power for approximately 45 minutes when an automatic auxiliary power system failed to kick in, according to the hospital's administrator, George Maroney.

Maroney said the failure caused no major problems at the hospital because no vital equipment was being used at that time.

The owl, with a 50-inch wing span, was electrocuted, and all damage caused by it has been repaired, O'Daniel said.

Prison sentence given in manslaughter case

By Debbie Absher
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A 37-year-old Murphysboro man convicted in March of voluntary manslaughter was sentenced Wednesday by Jackson County Circuit Judge Richard Richman to serve 3-to-10 years in a penitentiary.

George Tibbs was found guilty in a jury trial of the charge, which stemmed from the death of Marion Lipe, 28, of Makanda, in a fight at Big John's Tavern, 1106 Locust St., Murphysboro. Tibbs has appealed the conviction and is free on bond.

Andre Woods, 25, of Centreville, pleaded guilty Wednesday to armed robbery of the Clark Service Station, 1012 W. Main St., on Aug. 18, 1975.

Richman sentenced Woods to serve 8-to-10 years in a penitentiary on the charge. The sentence will run concurrently with a presently imposed 4-to-10 years he is now serving in Menard Prison on a conviction of attempted murder in St. Clair County on Aug. 28, 1975.

Woods also has two armed robbery charges pending against him in St. Clair County.

Bernard Cooper, 19, of Chicago, was bound over in a preliminary hearing Wednesday by Circuit Judge Everett Prosser for a jury trial July 12 at 9 a.m. on a charge of armed robbery.

Cooper is alleged to have robbed at gunpoint $106 from a station attendant at the Martin Oil Station, 315 N. Illinois Ave., on April 20.

The attendant, Ray Meyerchick, testified in the hearing that he was closing the station at about 9 p.m. that night when he was approached by Cooper, who asked him where the restroom was.

Cooper remained at the station for several minutes, Meyerchick said. Cooper then pulled out a gun, ordered the attendant into the station and then robbing him of a coin changer and coins in his pocket, Meyerchick said.

Carbondale Police Officer Mike Maurizio testified that he drove to the scene after he received the call to search for a suspect fleeing on foot. He said he and other officers found Cooper hiding off the North Washington Street drainage ditch.

Other officers found a gun, the coin changer, Cooper's wallet and a black jacket at various places along the route the suspect took from the station to the ditch, Maurizio testified.

will leave us alone."

The PLA, the regular military arm of the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) set up scores of sandbagged positions to form a one hundred-yard-wide buffer zone along the two-mile front line separating Christian and Moslem neighborhoods in Beirut.

The cease-fire was worked out by the Syrian-Lebanese-Palestinian truce committee to allow a session of parliament scheduled for Saturday to elect a replacement for President Suleiman Franjeh, a Christian.

The leftist Moslem alliance made his departure, before his term expires in September, a major demand. Afterwards, they want discussions on reforms in the Christian-dominated political system.

There was growing speculation the election may be delayed. It was originally scheduled for last Saturday but was postponed at the last minute.

New guerilla group bombs Corsica, France

AJACCIO, Corsica (AP)—A newly formed underground liberation movement launched a campaign Wednesday against French rule in Corsica with 16 bomb attacks in various parts of the Mediterranean island and another in Marseille. No one was killed or injured, police said, but bomb and fire damage was estimated at more than $1.1 million. The most serious fires followed explosions in a government office in Sartene, in the south of the island, and in a paint factory in Ajaccio, the capital.

One bomb blew out the front door of the main court house in Marseille, on the French mainland, where many Corsicans live. Other bomb targets on the island, birthplace of Napoleon Bonaparte, included the private villa of a French Foreign Legion commander, a telephone exchange, the headquarters of a nonviolent autonomist movement, a senior French official's car, various stores, offices and government installations and a nudist camp.

British government unveils new union pay deal

LONDON (AP)—Britain's Labor government unveiled on Wednesday a long-awaited pay deal with the unions that keeps raises within $7.24 a week in exchange for a package of tax concessions. The aim of the deal, thrashed out in 10 hours of negotiations that ended early in the morning, is to cut Britain's annual inflation rate—currently running at 21.2 per cent—to less than 10 per cent in 1977.

But the foreign exchange market, a barometer of overseas confidence in Britain's economic policies, took a doubtful view of the wage package. The pound lost gains made earlier in the day on hopes the deal would be closer to the government's target of 3 per cent instead of the 4½ agreed on. The deal was worked out between Chancellor of the Exchequer Denis Healey and leaders of the Trades Union Congress—(TUC)—representing about 10 million workers in 111 trade unions. Within hours the 30-member general council of the TUC approved the package by a vote of 25-5. It now goes before a full conference of the TUC June 16 at which ratification is regarded as a virtual certainty.

Senate fails to override child-care bill veto

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate on Wednesday failed by three votes to override President Ford's veto of a $125 million child-care bill. The Senate vote was 60 to 34, short of the needed two-thirds majority to override. It followed by one day a House vote of 301 to 101 to override the veto, 33 more than the required two-thirds in that chamber. To date Ford has vetoed 48 bills and has been overridden eight times.

The measure would have granted states $125 million to meet new federal child daycare standards, while delaying implementation of the standards until July 1. The standards set a minimum number of adult workers to care for children between the ages of six weeks and six years for the center to qualify for federal money. A previous suspension of these standards expired on Feb. 1, although they have yet to be put into effect. In his veto message, Ford said the legislation would "not make day-care services more widely available. It would only make them more costly to the American taxpayer."

Air Force discovers fault in B-1 test bomber

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Air Force told Congress Wednesday it has discovered a small crack in a test model of a tail section for the controversial B1 bomber. A spokesman said it is the first failure in a major part designed for the bomber, which is under heavy criticism from Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., and others, partly because of its high cost.

The five-inch semicircular crack was found in a spare separate tail assembly undergoing "fatigue testing" at the Rockwell International Corp. Los Angeles plant, a spokesman said. "The section was built to be tested not flown," he said. Two B-1 bombers which have been test flown a total of 34 times between them are not being grounded as a result, the spokesman said. No test flights have been scheduled at least until next week, he added. The spokesman indicated that the Air Force suspects that one of the sub-contractors involved in building the tail assembly was at fault, rather than any failure in the steel material. He said the Air Force is looking into this to determine responsibility.

Wood approved as Chicago Circuit Judge

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Judiciary Committee approved Wednesday the nomination of Harlington Wood Jr. to be a judge on the 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Chicago. Wood, now a federal judge for the southern district of Illinois, was nominated by President Ford to succeed John Paul Stevens on the Circuit Court. Stevens was appointed by Ford to fill the U.S. Supreme Court vacancy left by the retirement of Justice William O. Douglas.

Wood, a former U.S. attorney for the Southern District of Illinois and later an assistant attorney general in charge of the Justice Department's civil division, had the endorsement of both Illinois senators. At a brief hearing before the committee acted, Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., said that Wood "will continue the outstanding tradition of Justice Stevens." Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., submitted a statement saying that Wood has served with "great distinction" in the posts he has held.

Kerner's request for pension benefits refused

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—Former Illinois Gov. Otto Kerner's request for state pension payments which were cut off after his conviction in a race track stock scandal was rejected Wednesday by the State Employees Retirement Board. But Kerner's attorney, Robert Weiner of Springfield, said he may take Kerner's request to the courts. The board voted 3-0 to deny Kerner's request for $9,382.24 in back pension payments and resumption for life of $335.08 monthly payments.

The board held that the 67-year-old Kerner forfeited his right to a state pension when he was convicted of federal felony charges in 1973. In taking the action, the board overturned a decision by hearing officer Manuel Robbins of Chicago, whom it had appointed to gather evidence and make a recommendation in the case.

UPS, teamsters still negotiating new contract

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS (AP)—Negotiators said Wednesday that talks are "still moving gradually and positively" in attempts for a settlement in the United Parcel Service (UPS) contract dispute. About 14,000 drivers and warehouse workers in 13 central and Rocky Mountain states have been on strike since midnight Friday. Remaining on their jobs under a separate contract are about 3,000 Teamsters in Illinois and Indiana.

An employees' newspaper, UPS, said the main issues in the federally mediated negotiations are the use of part-time workers, supervisors doing unwork and forced overtime. The teamsters, in a statement, said "the company's record profits are due to the rigid work rules and the company's low regard for employees."

Cease-fire appears to work as Beirut street-fighting ends

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—The Beirut port area, scene of heavy fighting for the past week, calmed Wednesday with a new cease-fire, and streetfighters of both sides emerged from bunkers to exchange cold drinks, cigarettes, crosses and Korans in the buffer zone.

Troops of the Palestinian Liberation Army (PLA) separated Christian and Moslem forces in the capital. However, some sporadic fighting with small arms continued in suburbs and nearby mountain towns.

Police said 45 persons were killed and 72 wounded mostly in fighting outside Beirut. In Lebanon's 13-month old civil war nearly 18,000 people have died.

In the port area, a bearded Christian gunman threw his arms around a Moslem streetfighter in the middle of the debris of war.

"God willing one day we will sit together and eat together and drink together," he said. "If only the big shots

Industry rep calls alcoholism No. 1 killer

By Judy Vandewater
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Alcoholism has been called the nation's most untreated treatable illness, and Ed L. Johnson, manager of the employee assistance program at Firestone Tire and Rubber Co., believes it is the No. 1 cause of death of persons under the age of 60.

Johnson, himself a dry alcoholic, was the keynote speaker at the "Alcoholism in Industry Conference" held Wednesday at SIU.

Johnson spent 13 years as a skidrow alcoholic before recovering. "And you didn't help one damn bit, because you didn't know how to," he said, addressing the audience composed largely of representatives of mental health programs and industry.

Only five per cent of the alcoholics in this nation end up on skidrow, Johnson pointed out, noting that the highest incidence of alcoholism appears among clergy. Alcoholism respects no social boundaries. One out of every 10 persons who has ever drunk will end up an alcoholic, Johnson said.

Alcoholism is still treated as a moral sin by mental health agencies, Johnson said adding that these misconceptions must be wiped out if progress in treatment is to be made.

Alcoholism is a "physical, social, emotional, mental and spiritual," disease. "Any effective recovery program must treat the 'whole person in all aspects' he said adding that the family must also be involved in the treatment.

Johnson said recovery programs must be designed to deal with cross-addiction or multiple drug use. "It is almost impossible to come up with a pure alcoholic in the under-40 age group."

Johnson, who has worked in the Firestone program since 1971, said that more than four out of five persons involved in the program have recovered. "We have buried 37 people, that is why we come on strong," he said.

Raymond Kelly, coordinator of industrial alcohol programs for the Illinois Department of Health, said many people fail to realize that alcoholism is often terminal. As long as we continue to shelter alcoholics and help them avoid accepting responsibility for their actions "we are killing them with kindness," Kelly said.

"We do not discipline an employee for suffering from a disease, but alcoholism is not an excuse for poor job performance," Kelly said employers can motivate their employees to seek help. He recommended an employee assistance program to hit the early stages of the disease with discipline being used as a last step.

Alcoholism in the making is anything but hidden, Kelly said, adding that management should be trained to look for sharp mood changes, increased tardiness or absenteeism and decreased production.

Industry should focus on "prevention, early detection and referral before that person becomes one of our alcoholic casualties," Kelly said.

"It is to industry's advantage to start an alcoholism program," Kelly said. The disease costs industry billions of dollars every year and usually shows up in the prime years of productivity.

James S. Peterson, director of the Alcoholism Resource Center in Carbondale, said the largest number of drinking problems are found in employed males between 20 and 30 years of age.

Peterson and Harry A. Allen, associate professor of rehabilitation counseling at SIU, described the differences between social drinkers, problem drinkers and alcoholics.

Peterson said social drinking does not mean drinking in a social setting. It is "drinking with a full awareness of why you are drinking." Social drinkers have the ability to consistently control their intake and they drink in socially acceptable setting, he said.

Allen said 86 million Americans are social drinkers. "We as a culture have many myths and misconceptions about drinking," he said, while displaying various liquor ads. "If you believe the ads, then we have got a panacea in a bottle."

Peterson said gulping drinks, sneaking drinks and craving drinks are some signs that a person is a problem drinker and should seek treatment.

An alcoholic's life revolves around drinking. "His health, family and job are less important than drinking." He does not have to drink every day, Peterson said adding that the desire is characterized by "excessive periodic use."

Alcoholics have lost most of their control and most of their willpower, Peterson said. An alcoholic cannot recover without outside help, he said.

Allen said, "It is much easier to talk about it, than to do something about it. We must be willing to take a step forward and confront that person. It is not an easy task, but it means that I care enough about that person not to let them go down the drain."

Moralizing, lecturing or appealing to willpower will not help an alcoholic, Allen said. The greatest help is intervention. Allen stressed that because alcoholism is a physical addiction, the drying out period requires medical or paramedical attention. Recovery also requires the assistance of family, employers and friends.

Pot-sex issue considered by committee

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Appropriations Committee began consideration Wednesday of a supplemental budget proposal that, among other things, would allow use of federal funds for a sex and marijuana study at Southern Illinois University in Carbondale.

The committee's Labor and Health, Education and Welfare subcommittee last week deleted language from the bill that prohibited spending federal funds for the controversial study.

The House already has approved its supplemental budget proposal for fiscal year 1976. It bans using federal funds for the study, which would test the sexual responses of male college students who smoke marijuana.

A report by the Senate appropriations subcommittee said the decision to delete the restrictive language was based on an appeal by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare which called the ban undue interference with review processes established for scientific studies.

After striking the prohibition, the subcommittee said it "directs the various health programs to closely monitor and strengthen the review and negotiation process for grants."

SIU to study American Indians' education

By Peggy Sagona
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The educational levels of the American Indians are far behind those of the national average and SIU will study ways to correct that imbalance, said Bruce Swinburne, vice president for student affairs.

Billy Burgess, dean of instruction at Haskell Indian Junior College at Lawrence, Kan., and authority on the subject of Hispan-American Indian Studies, was at SIU last week to work with the Student Affairs Funding Development Task Force in an effort to generate interest in the Indian and his educational needs.

Burgess said the Indian spends an average of 5.6 years in school and 56 per cent of Indian high school students quit school before graduating.

"Longitudinal studies show that Indian students who graduate from high school are one year older chronologically and two years younger academically (than the national average)," he said.

Burgess said "The Indian population makes an average score of 10.7 on the American College Testing Program examination, but the national average is 19.4."

Data collected in the fall of 1975 indicates there are 44 students on the SIU-C campus who are of Indian decent and U.S. citizens, said Arthur Casebeer, professor of higher education and member of the task force.

Indian students have not been actively recruited, said Manuel Justiz, member of the task force and doctoral candidate in higher education.

"It is a step-by-step process. We have to decide what to do for the students before we look for them," Justiz said.

Swinburne said, "The Indian has been clearly discriminated against educationally."

Burgess' visit generated "a deep respect for the Indian culture and a heightened sensitivity to working with people from another culture," Swinburne said.

Swinburne said the attempt to look at cultures is at an exploratory level. "We are looking for ways to provide opportunities for people and segments of the population that have been discriminated against."

Swinburne said one of the first steps to more adequately provide for the Indians' needs would be to bring graduate Indian students to SIU to complete their degrees.

Swinburne said, however, "It may be that our ideas of education may not be that appropriate for Indian students."

Swinburne said the country as a whole has not developed the right kind of sensitivity to the Indian culture.

"Burgess indicated an interest in working with an institution such as SIU that has a commitment to extending educational opportunities," he said.

Burgess said a major problem is finding ways to loosen the federal government's control over reservations and turning that control over to reservation residents.

"The task force will be writing up proposals, hopefully, to bring in outside funding to support programs of this type," he said.

Burgess indicated that an area in helping the Indian communities take over in their own right, systematically and competently," Burgess said.

"What we are talking about at SIU is helping the Indian communities take over in their own right, systematically and competently," Burgess said.

More regulations...

By Bruce Holding
Student Writer

A Northwestern University psychiatrist may have hit the nail on the head when he recently proscribed new standards for denying emotionally unstable persons driver licenses. According to Dr. Ronald Shlensky, most fatal traffic accidents that occur are caused by emotionally unstable persons.

"We know that some of these deaths (55,000 annually) are intended suicides, and it's likely that many more are unconsciously motivated, self-destructive acts," he reported in the current issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

It has been common knowledge far too long that state and local policemen can only respond to a call for help. They are not granted the authority to prevent the driver from climbing behind the wheel in the first place.

To cut down on this rash of deaths, Shlensky has revised the present inadequate standards to allow for tighter regulations in the distribution of licenses. His four new standards include tests for intellectual impairment caused by such conditions as senility, mental retardation and brain injury resulting from a stroke or injury; impaired perception of reality which can be brought on by schizophrenia, severe depression or brain damage; suicidal or homicidal inclinations; and alcohol and drug abuses.

Psychological tests are available now that presently aren't but could be used at the time of examinations to detect intellectual impairment of reality perception, according to the doctor.

As it stands now, practically anyone who is 16-years old and can make a right hand turn without plowing over a fire hydrant is eligible for a license. Not enough attention is given to an individual at the time of an examination. People change so why shouldn't the licensing of drivers?

With our growing population, both in cars and individuals, anxieties are going to continue to climb. As Shlensky pointed out, "Society must balance the question of individual freedom with its need to protect itself from emotionally dangerous drivers." drivers.

Legislation makers should pay close heed to Shlensky's report and put his plans into action. Automobile deaths are our nation's leading killer among accidents. If that isn't cause for action, then maybe it would be wiser to lock the car and throw away the keys.

...and more Carter

By Tom Bell
Student Writer

Many presidential candidates come under attack by the press, public and other candidates for taking stands on certain issues that are unpopular. No matter how severe the criticism, candidates go on campaigning and taking their stands. A good example of this is former Ga. Gov. Jimmy Carter.

When the smiling peanut farmer, turned presidential candidate, came out with his statement in Indianapolis concerning communities trying "to maintain their ethnic purity," reporters did their job and pressed Carter for an explanation of the term. Carter "resented" the reporters' actions and said they were "trying to make something out of nothing."

It is Carter's right to think this and it is becoming more and more evident that many journalists are "trying to make something out of nothing." Reporting on Carter's winning the recent Pennsylvania primary, Walter Cronkite was all but awed by the fact that Carter won since so much has been said about Carter's unfortunate choice of words in saying what he meant.

The Rev. Martin Luther King, Sr. has dismissed as "a slip of the tongue that everyone knows does not represent his thinking" Carter's use of the words "ethnic purity." While the father of the slain civil rights leader said it is wrong to jump on a man for such a slip, Carter says he hasn't seen any deterioration of his black support at the polls. Still the remark is being thrown into the face of the public by members of the press.

The Washington Post also continues to run articles concerning Carter's Indianapolis remarks. If other members of the press are using Carter's foible to serve some function, that function should be made clear. If not, continual reporting of the shortcoming only goes to prove that shoddy journalism continues to exist without the founding fathers of yellow journalism, William Randolph Hearst, Sr. and Joseph Pulitzer.

Muckraking is interesting reading to some and when Carter's remark initially came out it was newsworthy and deserved the coverage it received, but now the "ethnic purity" remark is old news, and as all journalists should know—"old news is no news," so let's cut the cheap shots.

Another shortage approaching

Michael H. Van Dorn
Student Writer

When winter sets in Americans will have another shortage to take their minds off our gas and oil shortage. This winter Americans will have a natural gas shortage to contend with. Although the natural gas shortage has been growing for some time, this winter the shortage may grow in proportion and force people to notice it.

The Federal Energy Administration reported that what once was considered an unwanted by-product of oil, natural gas represents about one-third of the total fuel consumed in the United States. It is used in over 40 million homes, 3.4 million commercial establishments, and 200,000 industrial plants.

Natural gas is a mixture of hydrocarbon and non-hydrocarbon gases found in porous rock formations beneath the earth's surface, often in association with petroleum. Methane forms an essential part of natural gas.

On Oct. 22, 1975, the Senate passed and sent to the House a bill designed to deal with the nation's problem of shrinking natural gas supplies on an emergency and a long-term basis. Under the bill federal regulations of natural gas prices will be loosened, causing prices to raise, mainly for industries, but also for other consumers, as the shortage increases. As more natural gas is found prices would drop.

That the Senate bill is passed is very important to the American people as it is the most logical solution to the natural gas shortage. According to the Federal Power Commission the present regulated natural gas prices are too low to encourage producers to search for new sources of gas and to encourage consumers to use fuel more economically.

The contention that industry should switch to a different type of fuel is definitely not the answer.

Disruption of industries would increase unemployment, and through resulting scarcities of the different fuel, contribute to inflation. Industry's ability to switch from natural gas to other fuels is also limited. Propane and butane are the closest substitutes but supplies of these fuels are already committed almost entirely to agriculture and petrochemical uses. Converting a plant to another fuel is also expensive and time-consuming.

Taking into consideration the above facts, deregulation of natural gas prices is the most logical path to take until more natural gas is found.

Dial-a-Joke may not be funny, but it has the right idea

By Joanne Hollister
Associate Editor

Many wondrous things have been done with telephone communication. You can talk to anyone anywhere in the world with just the twist of a finger. Not only do you have a choice of color and style (a pink princess?) but the services you can reach at the other end of the line are fascinating.

Viewpoint

You can dial and get the time and weather. You can dial and receive religious guidance from Dial-a-Prayer. Various counties in the eastern United States are toying with the idea of Dial-a-Jury. All these services are helpful, a plus to society. But mankind can be most grateful to Bell, because his invention has made it possible for us to call Dial-a-Joke.

Located somewhere in Manhattan, Dial-a-Joke is more of a monologue than a joke. For 60 seconds, the listener is treated to (or the victim of) a recording, usually done by a famous person, telling a lot of quick one-liners. And overwhelming laugh tract plays right along.

This week's selection features Betty Walker in a telephone conversation with her good friend Ceil. They are discussing the husband of Ruth Gonnitz. "He works for show and tell—Internal Revenue," Betty says, a little Yiddish in her accent. "You think they tax too much? Listen, Ruth says if they could figure out a way they'd tax sex, but they can't figure out where to put the meter. But her husband is a nice guy. You'd never guess he works for Internal Revenue." Laughing uncontrollably? I thought you would be. Poor Mr. Gonnitz. Poor Mr. Walker.

Despite the fact that the monologue may not be the funniest thing you ever heard, the basic idea behind Dial-a-Joke is a pretty good one. The content changes periodically, and even if it doesn't make you laugh, at least it attempted to. Nowadays, that's a lot more than can be said for most people you'll run into. All it will cost you is 60 seconds of time and the price of a long distance call to the Big Apple. Mr. Gonnitz won't tax you for it, either.

Attack on McFarlin reminiscent of McCarthyism

To the Daily Egyptian:

Prof. Herbert Marshall's viewpoint presented in the Daily Egyptian on April 28, concerning Soviet treatment of Jews in the U.S.S.R. deserves some remarks. The central theme of Marshall's point of view is that Jews in the Soviet Union are oppressed and discriminated against. His harsh, unobjective and irresponsible attack on Prof. McFarlin reminds me of the days of McCarthyism in this country. For the record, I would like not only to denounce the senseless attack on Prof. McFarlin engineered by pro-Zionist propagandists, but also to refute their argument of anti-Semitism in the U.S.S.R.

Compared with other minority groups in the U.S.S.R., the Jews enjoyed an enviable status. The number of Jews engaged in scientific research rose from 29,000 in 1958 to nearly 61,000 in 1968. Jews comprise the third greatest number of research workers, exceeded only by Russian and Ukrainians, though they constitute only about one per cent of the U.S.S.R.'s population. Moreover, of 278 recipients of the Lenin Prize in 1971, 39 were Jews. Of 81 recipients in the field of science, seven were Jews, and they numbered 29 of 160 winners in technology. Among the top-ranking officers in the Soviet army are General Yakov Kreizer, Colonel-Generals David Dragunsky and Alexander Tsirlin, Major-Generals Zinoviy Kontsevoi and Lew Dovator, and Lieutenant-Generals Matvei Vainraub, Shimon Krivoshein and Georgiy Plaskov—all Jews.

In the 1970 census about 381,000 or 17.7 per cent of the total Jewish population declared Yiddish to be their mother tongue, compared to 20 per cent in 1959. In addition, a Russian-Hebrew Dictionary and its counterpart are published. Even more important is the fact that books by Jewish writers are widely translated into Russian, Ukrainian and other languages.

In conclusion, the writer feels that the campaign against the U.S.S.R. and the irresponsible attack leveled against Prof. McFarlin were designed only to serve the Zionist goal of bringing more Jews to Palestine at the expense of its native inhabitants (the Palestinians). Prof. Marshall should be ashamed of allying himself with such cheap and senseless propaganda. Instead, he should adhere to the principles of honesty and scholarship not only in his teaching but in his writings as well.

Nazi's would smile approvingly at McFarlin

To the Daily Egyptian:

While it is true that Prof. McFarlin's public writings in these pages have a phrase structure and semantic loading that would bring a smile of approval to any old Nazi, we must remember that similarity does not mean identity. It is indeed possible to champion the Palestinian cause without being involved in traditional anti-Semitism—I do see the two often going together but in all fairness they are not inextricably bound and we should take McFarlin at his word.

The real issue for me is not whether he is a Communist party member, a Nazi, or a crypto-browne. McFarlin simply will not believe the enormous dissident literature that is available which shows with awful clarity the systematic oppression that is directed against all segments of the Soviet population. We are told, often in sickening vividness, that the Soviet Union was and is a charnal house.

As I read McFarlin's letters and articles I was carried back to a point in my youth when I worked out of San Pedro in California. One of my buddies was Zeke Brown. Zeke was a diamond in the rough—a member of the CPUSA who wrote an occasional piece like "An American Seaman's View of the Socialist Homeland" for the west coast edition of the Daily Worker. He used to regale us with stories of his visits to the Soviet Union and the people he met and talked to. It never worried him that he kept meeting the same people in widely scattered places and that they all spoke excellent English. Zeke would tell us about the searching questions he asked to get at the real truth. Questions like "Do you live in fear of the police?" His "chance" acquaintances would always reply "No, not at all. We have a People's Police. Then Zeke would smile beautifully at us. I really felt badly when someone asked if that meant that the police could only arrest and harass people. Zeke didn't have a mean bone in his body. He just wasn't very bright and he had a simple adoration of all things Soviet—including Stalin. He was a true believer.

Going through Prof. McFarlin's incredible defense of Soviet tyranny I knew that old Zeke hadn't rung up "finished with engines" in that Snug Harbor in the sky. He is alive and well and teaching history at SIU.

Emotional retaliation

To the Daily Egyptian:

This is in response to Ms. Kathy Davis' letter of May 4 concerning the function of fraternities. Her conclusion regarding this "vital force in University life" is at best a hasty over-generalization and closer to being just plain ridiculous. Although I can sympathize with Ms. Davis' disgust in connection with the incident where a fraternity man vomited near her feet, to infer that this has any bearing on the purpose of the Greek system as a whole is downright preposterous.

In short, the function of fraternities is to be fraternal, not to get drunk and vomit as Ms. Davis implies. Granted, there are those among us, (both fraternities and independents alike) who participate in such actions. These individuals, since they are generally much louder than most, tend to make a stronger impression. However, organizations such as fraternities should be judged objectively as a whole, and prejudice undoubtedly based on second-hand, obsolete information such as the notion that all fraternity members are drunken bums should be disregarded.

If Ms. Davis wants to comment on the function of fraternities, I suggest that she confine herself to responsible criticism and not emotional retaliation for unfortunate personal experiences.

Wrong dean recognized

To the Daily Egyptian:

This letter is in regard to the advertisement offering thanks for the help of several individuals by the Southern Illinois Arts Resources Cooperative (SIARC).

As assistant dean in the College of Communications and Fine Arts, one of my duties is to guide program development. In this role, I was very happy to support and help the SIARC.

The Dean of the College is Dr. C. B. Hunt, Jr., not myself. Without Dr. Hunt's unqualified and enthusiastic backing for the project, the show would have been more difficult to get on the road.

Lack of efficiency causes confusion at library

To the Daily Egyptian:

This is to join those who have complained about a recent decrease of efficiency in book-shelving at Morris Library. A few days ago, I almost had to pay a fine and the price of a book that had been wrongly reshelfed and listed as missing. Having dropped it in the outside box without a receipt there was no recourse other than to locate the book. I came back several afternoons to the library and wasted precious time for the purpose of spotting the lost volume's number. During my search, (which fortunately was successful) I saw other books either mis-shelfed or laid here and there, untouched for days, and also many carts full of books awaiting to be re-shelfed.

I cannot help but think of all the instructors and students who just like me, may be delayed and frustrated in the course of their research because of the unavailability of these books temporarily astray.

If the reason for this new problem stems from an inadequate number of student workers, let's hope that true financial priorities will soon change this situation. The smooth running of a library in an institution of higher learning is absolutely crucial to the quality of its general output.

Offended need analyst

To the Daily Egyptian:

Concerning the ad for Savage Tan in the May 4 edition of the Daily Egyptian, and the letter in the May 5 edition of the Daily Egyptian condemning the ad: People who take offense at the sight of a pretty girl with a shapely body shouldn't waste their money buying the suntan oil anyway. The money should be applied towards a good analyst.

Grant system a farce

To the Daily Egyptian:

To the unfortunate many who were unable to secure any funds from the STS Grant Program, don't waste any time appealing your case. It seems we have been downgraded for not acting fast enough, even though we have as much a right for securing some money as anyone else who filed for the grant.

The problem lies in the system, no one person can be blamed, though I would enjoy pegging someone. The money should have been dispersed on a need basis, not first-come, first-served. Only Big Mac's are handed out that way. The committee financier, Mr. Parks, had to determine how much money was to be given for a given amount of need. If a person had a $400 debt, he received $100. Why not determine the need for all applicants and disperse the money accordingly, from high need to low. It seems logical enough to me; however, when I posed the question to Mr. Eggertsen's secretary, she had no answer.

Personally, I would like to have my $2.25 back. I could use it.

Panhellenic Council names Woman of the Year at banquet

Because of her outstanding contributions to the Greek system, Mary "Tinker" Calandro of the Delta Zeta social sorority is the Panhellenic Council's Woman of the Year.

She received the award Sunday at the annual Greek Banquet.

To be qualified for the award, a sorority woman must do outstanding work in her chapter, the entire Greek system, and/or the community, said Nancy Harris, assistant dean of Student Life. The Order of Isis, the Greek women's service organization, selects the recipient.

Calandro, a senior in social welfare, has been a member of Delta Zeta for four years and has held the offices of president, senior Panhellenic delegate, rush chairman, secretary, pledge trainer, Theta Xi director and Greek Week coordinator.

Offices Calandro has held outside her own sorority are secretary and vice chairman of Inter-Greek Council, vice president of expansion of the Panhellenic Council and treasurer of Alpha Kappa Lambda fraternity Little Sisters.

Calandro is also a member of the Order of Isis, the Sphinx Club and was elected Delta Zeta's 1974 Sister of the Year. She has been nominated for the Service to Southern Award and several chapter awards including the outstanding collegian in the state and the Grace Mason Lundy Award.

Presley gives up tourism project

By Kathy Drew
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Wayman Presley, president of Presley Tours in Makanda, said he has given up plans for a $20 million tourism project after its rejection by the Southern Five Planning Commission. Presley said he will make no further attempts to help tourism in Southern Illinois.

Presley proposed to turn 4,000 acres of forest land near Draper Valley into a tourist area that would include a convention center, cattle ranch and health spa. He was particularly interested in making the spring water, which he believed was youth-preserving, a main attraction. Presley claimed the project would have provided 200 jobs to people in Southern Illinois.

Carl Boyd, a member of the Southern Five Planning Commission said Presley's proposal was rejected because it was such a controversial issue. "We received petitions from probably a thousand people in the area opposing it," he said.

Boyd said Presley wanted to get federal or state funds for the project, then lease the land to private operators. He compared the project to Six Flags. "There isn't anything wrong with Presley's plan, but it was a matter of the method of attracting money to the Southern Illinois area."

Boyd said the Planning Commission felt there were other areas, such as sewage disposal, rural water districts and supplementing health programs, which were more important.

The federal government previously refused Presley's request for the use of land on the north side of Crab Orchard Lake, where he planned to build a lodge to attract tourists.

"Also, his idea for building a swimming pool in Grand Tower for those coming to Southern Illinois on excursion trains was rejected by the townspeople who wanted to preserve their small town," Presley said.

"This is it, I have finished. I have quit," Presley said.

Daily Egyptian press council plans first hearing Thursday

By Ron Morgan
Student Writer

The University-Community Press Council is ready to get down to business.

The council, an independent group recently formed to evaluate the performance of the Daily Egyptian, has completed its organization and will hold its first regular public meeting to hear complaints Thursday at 4 p.m. in Room 108 of the General Classrooms building.

A meeting last week, the nine-member council elected officers for summer semester and adopted a set of operating procedures for hearing complaints.

The council elected David Bateman, professor of business administration, chairperson; Albert M. Suguitan, a Carbondale businessman, vice chairperson; and David McCarthy, junior in administration of justice, secretary.

According to the operating procedures adopted by the council, the three officers will make up an

Medieval history to be recreated

An organization to study medieval history by selectively recreating all aspects of medieval life is being organized by Marcy Lyn in co-operation with the History Department.

The Society for Creative Anachronism, Inc. (SCA) a national organization, is being sponsored by Donald Brehm, assistant professor of history. An organizational meeting for the group will be held Thursday from 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. in Lawson 131. Lyn will be seneschal manager for the group and will be assisted by Bill Dempsey of Carterville.

Dempsey has traveled to California, where SCA was started in Berkeley 10 years ago, to observe individual branches of the organization.

executive committee which will screen complaints received by the council.

All complaints received by the council will be forwarded to the Daily Egyptian for a response. If the complainant is not satisfied with the Daily Egyptian's reply, he can request a grievance hearing.

A meeting of the full council will then be called to investigate the complaint. The hearing will be informal and no record will be kept. Each side will have the opportunity to present testimony and evidence at the hearing.

Within 30 days after the grievance hearing and any additional investigation is completed, the council will issue a written decision.

Along with the recommendations of the council, the decision will contain an outline of the grievance and the positions of the complainant and the Daily Egyptian.

The press council, which is made up of representatives of faculty, administrative, student and community constituencies, is an independent advisory group without any power except to evaluate the conduct of the Daily Egyptian and make its findings public.

The Daily Egyptian has pledged support for the council and has offered to publish its findings.

To date, the council has received three complaints, one regarding inaccurate reporting, one dealing with the acceptance of editorials and another dealing with the sale of advertising space. No hearings have been requested on these complaints as yet, according to Suguitan.

Man touring all 50 states for bicentennial tour-on foot!

CHICAGO (AP)—A while back, Mark Johnson was trying to hitch a ride in his home state of North Carolina.

It didn't work too well, and Johnson thought that at that rate he could walk around the country in the time it was taking to hitch.

So that's what he's doing—attempting to visit every state in the union on foot.

Johnson, 22, intends it as a Bicentennial trip. He started out Jan. 1 in Maine and has been zig-zagging across the country since. He hopes to wind up in Los Angeles, but says he has yet to solve the problem of how to get to Alaska and Hawaii.

So far the trip has cost him little, says the former college student. He has been taken in overnight as a boarder, camped out, slept in jails, fire departments and once even in an airplane. The airplane episode was in Petersburg, Va., where he

19-year old charged with striking mother

A Carbondale man was arrested Tuesday evening on a signed complaint that alleged he had struck his mother. Carbondale police said.

Police said Donny Thomas, 19, 201 N. Marion St., allegedly hit and choked Laura Thomas, 56, of the same address. Thomas was arrested and charged with battery. He was released on his own recognizance pending appearance in city court.

Darrell G. Fleck, 21, 606 E. Park St., was issued a citation after he blocked an oncoming lane of Lincoln Drive in front of the Student Center and caused Vito A. Mastrangelo, 22, No. 10 Murdale Trailer Court, who was riding a motorcycle, to hit his car, SIU security officials said.

According to the SIU security reports, Fleck made a left turn into Parking Lot 13 in front of the Student Center and had to stop for a car preceding him. Mastrangelo then hit Fleck's car, police said.

Mastrangelo was taken to the SIU Health Service, treated for cuts on the right leg, and was released.

A television and a typewriter were stolen from the Calhoun Valley Apartment of Peggy O'Connell Monday afternoon. Carbondale Police said Tuesday.

O'Connell said the total loss amounted to about $500. Entry was gained by forcing a door, police said.

Louis Watson, 57, 404 S. Marion St., was arrested at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday on a battery charge. Watson allegedly got into an argument with Georgia Ruble, 406 S. Marion St., and choked her, police said.

Watson was released on a $25 bond to appear in city court.

hiked out to the airport in hopes of spending the night in the lounge. That was locked, however, but a hangar was open, he found his way into a plane and dozed off for a few hours.

Johnson said he takes the shortest route possible on roads or highways and arranges his routing so he never goes back into a state once he has left it. He says he travels mostly on U.S. highways, takes no money from anybody and won't accept offers of rides. Once, an angry driver pulled a knife on him, he said, because Johnson refused an offer of a lift.

He has no favorite—or unfavorite—place so far. The only significant difficulty he has walked into, he said, was when officials in New York City refused to let him walk through the Holland tunnel. That meant a 10-mile walk up to the George Washington Bridge, and another 10-mile trek back down on the New Jersey side.

So far, Johnson says, he has walked more than 3,000 miles.

SIU's senior faculty member to retire after varied career

By Bob Wren
Student Writer

When Orville Alexander arrived at SIU he doubled the size of the Political Science Department. He was once the entire faculty of the economics department. Now after 40 years of teaching, Alexander is retiring.

The 66-year-old professor of political science is set to retire at the end of the summer term after having spent 38 years at SIU. He has no regrets about retirement, as he is doing it by choice. "I'm ready to quit," he said.

Alexander has done more than teach at SIU. From 1939 through 1957 he was a lobbyist in Springfield for the University. He claims much, if not all, the credit for changing the school's name from SOUTHERN Illinois Normal University to its current title. This was done, he said, despite a directive from the University hierarchy to the contrary.

The "Normal" was in SIU's name from 1869 until 1947. Alexander said the title was a throwback to the school's original purpose, which was the training of teachers. "The term became obsolete," he said. He remembers the celebration that went on in Carbondale when the name change became final. The theme was "We ain't Normal anymore."

Alexander also spent 1944-46 in Springfield, directing research for the Illinois Legislative Council. He also spent time in Ohio working for a legislative committee in addition to temporary teaching assignments at various schools across the country.

As a student in 1930, he was editor of the Daily Egyptian. He said he received no salary for his efforts but was promised a free copy of the paper as long as it was published.

The bespectacled professor pioneered one of the courses he is currently teaching. Political Science 334, "Administration of Justice." He said that no such course existed before he took it on.

"When I started the course," he said, "it wasn't completely 'respectable' and you would never hear the subject discussed at (political science) conventions. Some version of the course, which centers on the criminal justice system is now available at colleges all over the country," he said.

One unique feature of the course, and of all course Alexander teaches, is a list of approximately 500 books which he gives to students at the beginning of the term. The list includes the number of pages in each book, and the student is required to read 1,200 pages.

Alexander constantly revises his booklists and though he is an intense reader, he says that he is not a particularly fast one. "As a matter of fact, I'd say that I was below average in speed. What I do have is a facility for remembering." He denies that he has total recall.

Alexander said that the purpose of the booklist is to "make the student do some work." Though most instructors require some sort of paper, he's not convinced of their value, and said that students might welcome the opportunity to do something else.

Comparing today's students with the students of the '30's and '40's is not entirely valid, Alexander said.

"In the '30's, the average education was considered finished at the end of high school. Only the best students went on to college and to invite comparison is to put today's student against a very elite group."

Alexander feels that students have changed over the years. He said the current college student is much different from the student of 1968-72, the time of campus unrest.

The period of campus unrest in the late '60s brought about grade inflation, Alexander said, which stemmed in part from an instructor's lack of desire "to cooperate with the war machine."

Alexander doesn't know exactly what he wants to do upon retirement, but he said he's got a list of places he wants to go. "I'll just get up in the morning and decide what to do."

The Fallacy of Antisemitism at SIU

In a free and democratic society like the United States one expects tolerance, passion and objectivity to be the norms. The coercive means employed by any minority group to silence its opponents should not be allowed or encouraged.

The ad sponsored by the "ad hoc committee against antisemitism at SIU" is nothing but an attempt on the part of its designers to exert pressure and terror against Professor McFarlin who spoke against Zionism and its discriminatory policies in Palestine. Such an attempt fits well within the broad policy of Zionism. One of the methods of exhibiting the world's repugnance to antisemitism is its utilization by Israelis and Zionists to silence any criticism of Israeli policies by well informed writers and politicians who will inevitably find the offensive charge of antisemitism thrown at them. Many distinguished and honorable men like Arnold Toynbee and even Jews like Rabbi Elmer Berger have been called antisemites by Zionists, but were able, with moral courage, to withstand this offensive charge by which many lesser mortals were cowed. Arthur Hays Sulzberger, Publisher, N.Y. Times, showed his dislike of such methods by stating publicly, "I dislike the coercive methods of Zionists who in this country have not hesitated to use economic means to silence persons who have different views. I object to the attempts at character assassination of those who do not agree with them."

The issue raised by Professor McFarlin condemning the fanatical behavior of Jewish leaders in this country coincides with what President Truman had said earlier in 1949: "Top Jewish leaders in the U.S. were putting all sorts of pressure on me to commit American power and forces on behalf of Jewish aspirations in Palestine."

The systematic indoctrination of the American people toward a pro-Israel position did not only annoy scholars but top American leaders as well. Senator J. William Fulbright expressed similar views by stating that, "In what is probably the most delicate international situation which exists in the world today, 180,000,000 Americans find their foreign policy being whipsawed by a minority pressure group."

In order to shield their Zionist objectives and draw sympathetic support the Israeli and Zionist leaders have collaborated on the issue of antisemitism for no purpose other than the protection of their selfish interest. Those who dare to criticize their objectives are classified as antisemitic, even the Arabs who happen to be Semites. The expansionist designs of Zionism could be better explained by using the words of Moshe Dayan, Israel's ex-Minister of Defense: "Our fathers had reached the frontiers which were recognized in the partition plan. Our generation reached the frontiers of 1949. Now the Six-Day Generation has managed to reach Suez, Jordan and the Golan Heights. This is not the end. After the present cease-fire lines, there will be new ones. They will extend beyond Jordan-perhaps to Lebanon and perhaps to Central Syria as well." This is certainly what Professor McFarlin has warned against and he should not be stamped as antisemitic or scholarly unobjective. Professor McFarlin was not the first one to warn the American people against such expansionist designs. If peace is to prevail in the Middle East, all men of good intentions must share with Professor McFarlin his conviction.

The outstanding British philosopher and civil rights defendant Bertrand Russell believed that the crux of the matter was the national rights of the Palestinians in their country, according to his words said in February, 1970:

"The tragedy of the people of Palestine is that their country was 'given' by a foreign power to another people for the creation of a new state. The result was that many hundreds of thousands of innocent people were made permanently homeless. With every new conflict their numbers increased. How much longer is the world willing to endure this spectacle of wanton cruelty? It is abundantly clear that the refugees have every right to the homeland from which they were driven, and the denial of this right is at the heart of the continuing conflict. No people anywhere in the world would accept being expelled en masse from their own country; how can anyone require the people of Palestine to accept a punishment which nobody else would tolerate? A permanent just settlement of the refugees in their homeland is an essential ingredient of any genuine settlement in the Middle East."

However it should be pointed out that the Arab and all peace loving people are not against the rights of the Jewish people to live and exercise their own religious beliefs in a democratic state with equal rights together with their Palestinian cousins.

If Abba Eban (ex-foreign minister of the State of Israel) has admitted that the two glorious periods in the Jewish history occurred during the Islamic and American culture, this could be repeated again with no reservation.

In conclusion the signatories believe that the central issue in Palestine is not and should not be centered on an exclusive Jewish state in the area but on a more open, democratic and humane society in which Jews, Christians and Moslems can live together. The designed attack on Professor McFarlin is neither objective nor responsible for it falls under the propaganda techniques. Fanaticism on the part of pro-Israeli elements on this campus should not be tolerated or allowed to silence scholars and students from airing their views with regard to this matter or anything else. In addition, we label the attack on Professor McFarlin as one-sided, ill-motivated and disdainful.

Institute offers academic, art funds

The Institute of International Education has announced the opening of the 1977-78 competition for grants for graduate study or research abroad in academic fields and for professional training in the creative and performing arts.

The purpose of the grants is to increase mutual understanding between the people of the United States and other countries through the exchange of persons, knowledge and skills. They are provided under the terms of the Mutual Educational and Cultural Exchange Act of 1961 (Fulbright-Hays Act) and by foreign governments, universities and private donors.

Applicants must be U.S. citizens at the time of application, who hold a bachelor's degree or its equivalent before the beginning date of the grant and, in most cases, be proficient in the language of the host country. Except for certain specific awards, candidates may not hold the Ph.D. at the time of application. Candidates for 1977-78 are ineligible for a grant to a country if they have done graduate work or conducted research in that country during the 1976-77 academic year.

Creative and performing artists are not required to have a bachelor's degree, but they must have four years of professional study or equivalent experience. Social work applicants must have at least two years of professional experience after the Master of Social Work degree. Candidates in medicine must have an M.D. at the time of application.

Selection is based on the academic and or professional record of the applicant, the validity and feasibility of the proposed study plan, language preparation and personal qualifications. Preference is given to candidates who have not had prior opportunity for extended study or residence abroad. Information and application forms may be obtained from John E. Dotson, Fulbright program adviser at SIU, Woody Hall, Wing C, Room 127. Deadline date for receipt of applications in the adviser's office is October 15.

Kunstler raps U.S. justice

By Constantine Karahalios
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

William Kunstler lashed out at what he called "legal criminality" in America, before an overflowing house of about 700 at the Student Center Ballroom D Tuesday night.

In a speech entitled "Justice in America," the celebrated attorney for Yippie leaders at the Chicago Seven conspiracy trial said that law enforcement officials on the federal and local level are putting themselves above the law in the name of national security.

"That's exactly what Hitler said," warned Kunstler, nearly losing his voice. "Carry that attitude to its logical extreme and you have a totalitarian state."

Speaking with fervor and professional grace, Kunstler told the audience that FBI Special Agent Harlan C. Phillips told a congregation of churchgoers last weekend that "law enforcement officers are God's ambassadors" on earth.

Phillips, the agent in charge of the FBI's St. Louis region, said over the phone to the Daily Egyptian "rulers are ordained by God and most of today's laws come from the ten commandments."

"In his everyday fight against crime and evil the law enforcement officer is enforcing God's law," disclosed Phillips.

Kunstler said that according to the Senate Select Committee's report, released earlier this week, "these ambassadors of God are the same people who bugged bedroom conversations of Dr. Martin Luther King and threatened to give the tapes to his wife unless he committed suicide before he was to receive the Nobel Peace Prize."

Kunstler cited cases from all over the country where the prosecution has withheld evidence that would be beneficial to the defendant's case, but would damage its own case before the court.

In the case he is presently working on, the retrial of St. Louis resident J. B. Johnson on burglary charges, Kunstler said that the prosecution failed to tell the court they were in possession of two rings hours before police allegedly found them in Johnson's shoes. Kunstler said that the rings were the main evidence against Johnson.

Kunstler continued, saying that while he was defending "native Americans" from the Wounded Knee reservation, the FBI suppressed evidence that a key witness for the prosecution had raped a girl. Kunstler said the FBI wanted the witness to "testify without a blemish on his record."

"You could go on all night with this sort of thing," Kunstler said.

Kunstler also voiced a fear that the current Supreme Court is "slowly but assuredly doing away with Constitutional rights." He said a recent court decision has given law enforcement officials "a carte blanche to abuse our civil liberties."

While answering questions from the audience after his speech, Kunstler said that "drug laws in this country are beyond belief," and added that it reflected our system of justice.

"Kliendist can lie before a Senate Select committee," Kunstler began, and get 30 days, suspended sentence. Timothy Leary is caught with possession of one marijuana joint and gets 9-10 years. Justice in America? I don't know, you judge."

'Wishbone Ash' to head Springfest celebration

"Wishbone Ash" will be headlining Thursday's activities for the "Springfest '76" week-long schedule of events. The band will perform, with the "Slink Rand Group" at 8 p.m., behind Woody Hall.

"Wishbone Ash" has become popular through their seven albums with the latest being "Locked In" on the MCA label. Other albums to their credit are "Argus," "Live Dates," "Wishbone Ash," "Wishbone Four," "Pilgrimage" and "There's the Rub."

Group members include Steve Upton on drums and percussion, Martin Turner on bass guitar and vocals, Andy Powell on electric and acoustic guitars and vocals, and Laurie Wisefield on electric and acoustic guitar, slide and vocals.

The "Slink Rand Group" is an Illinois product from the Champaign-Urbana area.

Also scheduled for Thursday's Springfest '76 is the film "The Producers." The film, directed by Mel Brooks, will be shown at 7 and 9 p.m. in the Student Center Auditorium.

Reading hour set for Friday

A reading hour for seniors in speech and members of the "Performance in Shakespeare" class has been planned by the Speech department for 7 p.m. Friday at the Calipe Stage.

The hour will feature six seniors in speech and three graduate students in the Shakespeare class, a combined English and speech course. Material read will include "As You Like It" and Henry the Fourth" by the Shakespeare class members; and works by e. e. cummings, Shel Silverstein, William Faulkner, Steven Vincent Benet and Joyce Carol Oates by the seniors.

Karen Mitchell, director of the Calipe Stage, said the hour was "more of a senior recital and a chance for people who are coming close to completing their work at SIU to read."

Speech seniors participating in the program are Tom Eichelberger, Doug Harris, Ann Smith, Ann Malinsky, Winston Throgmorton III and Karen Mitchell. "Performance in Shakespeare" class participants will be Michael Heck, a graduate student in theater, Jeanie Arensman, a graduate student in speech, and Wilson Lindauer, a graduate student in English.

No admission has been set for the reading hour. It is open to the public.

The play is directed by Terry Allen, a graduate student in speech.

would be seen June 7, "Madama Butterfly" by Puccini would be seen June 8 and "Norma" by Bellini will be seen June 10.

A orientation tour of Washington, a tentative private luncheon at the capitol with Illinois Senators Charles Percy and Adlai Stevenson III and Illinois Congressman Paul Simon, and a private guided tour of the Capitol, Supreme Court and Library of Congress are scheduled Monday.

Planned for Tuesday is a tentative private tour of the White House and a Potomac River cruise to Washington's Mount Vernon. Wednesday will feature a trip to Baltimore and Philadelphia and Thursday is free for sightseeing, he said.

A side trip to Richmond and Williamsburg, Va. is planned for Friday with a sunset cruise of the Norfolk, Va. harbor. Saturday will feature a private guided tour of the Kennedy Center. The Williamsburg side-trip is not paid in advance, Richardson said.

Richardson said the trip will cost about $400 per person. He explained that $400 is the base fee which will include all air and ground transportation, accommodations at the Holiday Inn in McLean, Va., 10 meals, tickets to the scheduled activities, cruise fares on the Potomac and Norfolk trips, full-time guide service and membership in the Friends of WSIU.

Richardson explained that the price for children under 12 is $292 because children stay for free at the motel. The cost of a single room at the motel is $50 extra raising the price to $450, he said. Airfare to and from Washington, D.C. can be charged on major credit cards, he said, which would drop the cost to $299.

Reservations with one half of the total cost are due at 5 p.m. May 21 as a deposit. Richardson said this fee is not refundable. The remaining half is due by 5 p.m. June 3. Checks should be made payable to the SIU Foundation Friends of WSIU.

Reservations can be made through Richardson at the SIU Broadcasting Service, Carbondale, Illinois, 62901. Only 39 seats are available for the trip, he said.

Hill House combines therapy, home setting

Editor's note: This is the first story in a three-part series on Carbondale's Hill House.

By Mark Raeber
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Hill House, a non-profit organization which deals primarily with persons with drug problems, offers therapy in a residential environment.

There are actually two Hill Houses. One, located at 512 S. Beveridge, is for young adults 18 years and older. The other, in the University City complex, is for juveniles under 18-year-old.

Both operate as one non-profit organization supervised by a seven member board of directors. The house has been in existence for about three-and-a-half years.

Its residents, according to a Hill House brochure, are persons with "behavioral and psychological problems of such intensity that they have difficulty functioning in the larger community."

Paul Reitman, executive clinical director of Hill House, said, "We essentially specialize in all forms of residential treatment.

"What makes us unique is our ability to work with people," he said, "as opposed to working on people."

"We take people with drug problems and provide them with a healthy family structure to live in," Reitman said. Sociologically speaking, we're an extended family unit.

"The principal funding comes from Child and Family Services for the juveniles and from the Dangerous Drug Commission (DDC) for the young adults," he said. Funds also come from a variety of private and public organizations.

"In the two and a half years under my directorship, we have grown, budget wise, from $42,000 to over $200,000," he said.

"We are responsible to the DDC, Child and Family Services and the other agencies that fund us. We have very specific requirements to meet. We have to demonstrate that we are giving what we say we are giving," he said.

A fee scale has also been devised, which allows residents to pay for their treatments. The maximum that would be paid is $300 per week. "But people are not turned away if they can't afford to pay," Reitman said.

There are 32 residents presently living in the two sections of Hill House.

Reitman said residents get to Hill House by referral. One way is by referral from the courts as an alternative to incarceration.

Another is by referral from another agency. "We are well-known in Illinois, the southern parts of Missouri and Indiana, and in western Tennessee and Kentucky," he said.

"Hill House is more than a professional thing. It is a personal part of my life and of the lives of each of the staff members." There are 12 full time members.

"We see ourselves, because of our commitment, as being emotionally involved—almost as much as parents," he said. "That's what you need to get to these kids."

"They don't look on me as the executive clinical director," he continued. "I'm Paul, their friend."

"I'm sure there are a lot of people in the community who hate Hill House," he said. "Their first reaction would be: 'Oh, my God. Fifteen to 20 druggies in one house. I wonder what goes on there?'"

"No one hears the good things about Hill House," he said. "What the community needs to realize is that they might have kids of their own who have problems, but have not been caught," he said.

Paul Reitman

Field school set for summer along river floodplain

The Department of Anthropology will conduct an Archaeological Field School from June 14 to August 6 in the Kincaid Mounds area of the Black Bottom, an area which extends along the Ohio River floodplain in Massac and Pope Counties in Southern Illinois.

The long-range goal of the project is to test hypotheses about the nature of Mississippian cultural systems in the lower Ohio River valley.

Student participants will be selected on the basis of previous course and field work and motivation towards a professional career in anthropology. These assessments will be made on the basis of information supplied on the application form, in letters of recommendation and on the goals the applicant has with respect to the school.

Six semester hours of academic credits will be offered through the Division of Continuing Education. The cost is approximately $108 for Illinois residents, and approximately $324 for out-of-state residents.

In addition, the student should expect to pay a subsistence co-operative share of $150, excess returnable. Each student must have health insurance, preferably through the student's own institution.

Students may pick up application forms from the Department of Anthropology, Faner Hall, Room 3525.

Off-road racing club: just stuck-in-the-mud?

Staff
photos
by Daryl
Littlefield

Mud and fun were synonymous this past weekend at the Big Muddy Four-Wheelers' jeep and dune buggy races located southwest of Murphysboro. It was fun, at least, for the spectators who watched drivers risk life and limb.

The mud-hole event provided the most laughs. Craig Wise of the T.O.R.R.O. Off-road Club and Jerry Stovall of the Red Hill Four-Wheelers (above) were the only participants to successfully slosh through the 100-foot mud hole. Others, like the driver in the lower right picture, wallowed up to their gear shifts in mud and had to be towed from the quagmire.

Besides the mud-hole event, the club also held up-hill drag races and an off-road obstacle course race. The course was extremely difficult and some drivers did not make it to the finish in their cars. Bob Buckley of Mortonville, Ind., (right) with crash helmet securely in place, runs down the obstacle course after he dropped his transmission on a downhill 'U' turn.

Some spectators, like Brent and Blake Bahrns (lower left), kept a safe distance from the action and tackled only the flatter terrain on their less-powerful machines.

Football practice to end; intra-squad game Saturday

SIU entered its final week of spring football practice seeking much improvement on defense and some overall team depth.

"We have made a lot of progress this spring," Saluki coach Rey Dempsey, who will put his first team through the Maroon-White game at 1:30 p.m. Saturday at McAndrew Stadium, said.

"Defensively, we are struggling," he said. "Too many of the players we should be getting a good look at are out with injuries. Offensively, we are improving our line techniques."

"We aren't blowing people off the line, but we are getting better. The backfield is fast and all the kids are good runners. Our passing attack at this stage is only fair."

"We are lacking good team depth right now. With our injuries, it is hard for us to get a good first team on offense and defense."

Dempsey and his staff have spent most of spring trying to place their best personnel at positions which will benefit the team the most.

Martin DeVolder, a center the past three years, has been moved to middle guard and has taken over the number one position, while Wash Henry, the starting fullback as a freshman last fall, is now in the defensive secondary.

A general reshuffling of personnel in the offensive line has resulted in returning starters Ray Melick going from tackle to guard, Randy Habbe from guard to tackle, John Schroeder from guard to center, Mike Abegg from tight end to quick tackle and tight end Rob Leach to guard.

"Abegg is one of the players who is making the biggest improvement on our squad," Dempsey said. "He is doing very well at tackle."

Abegg has had a checkered career as a Saluki. He was the starting quarterback in 1972, played tight end and quarterback as a reserve in 1973, missed the following season and was a reserve lineman last year.

A fifth-year senior from Belleville Althoff, Abegg is 6-4 and 230 pounds.

The Salukis also have looked at Joe Holtgrewe, a junior fullback from Belleville, and fullback Hugh Fletcher, who missed the 1975 season with an ankle injury, at the tight end spot.

On defense, senior Bob Dickey from Mascoutah has moved from end to linebacker and "is starting to develop quickness and definitely is showing signs of improvement," Dempsey said.

Dempsey has been pleased with the work turned in by the Saluki running backs led by Andre Herrera, Gary Linton and John Dismuke at tailback and Lawrence Boyd and Jim Vanlandingham at fullback.

"We have a lot of competition at these two positions," Dempsey said. "Vanlandingham helps matters because he can play either position. Because of our good depth situation at running back, we haven't been reluctant to move players from these positions to get our best players into the lineup."

Operating at the quarterback spot has been Tim Cruz, a junior letterman from Decatur. Cruz inherited the signal-calling duties on the first unit when transfer Jim Kelly suffered a dislocated hip in the first scrimmage.

Kelly has been joined on the injury list by starting linebacker Carlton Spain, starting defensive tackle Tom Ippolito, starting defensive backs Gordon Willis and Mike Bellantoni as well as defensive tackle Dan Von Holt.

Commandoes challenge IM softball victor

By Mark Kazlowski
Daily Egyptian Sports Editor

Challenge matches that have long been a favorite of professional tennis players have finally made it down to the level of the common man.

The American Tap Commandoes, the defending 12-and 16-inch softball champions in men's intramurals, have challenged the winner of this year's championship to a one-game series. At stake is some pride and possibly a leg of beer.

The playoffs are scheduled to conclude Thursday afternoon.

If it weren't for a technicality, the Commandoes could be playing. The defending champs were undefeated this season before a forfeit loss to the Legal Eagles in the tournament's opening round.

It seems that one of the Tap players thought he was eligible to play but was not due to the intramural eligibility requirements.

The person in question was making up an incomplete, but was not regularly enrolled in credit courses and did not have a validated fee statement as the eligibility rules require.

The Tap Commandoes won the game with Legal Eagles 16-14, but the Legal Eagles who reached the semifinals found a loophole to make the Commandoes ex-champions.

Ken Lorino, a spokesman for the Commandoes, said, "We wouldn't mind losing, but we don't like the fact that we were put out on something I would consider trivial."

Lorino, a graduate student in occupational education, emphasized that he was not faulting the intramural department for the decision. His and the team's hope is to get a shot at a game with the intramural champions.

"Everybody has a little ego," Lorino said. "We want to make sure everybody knows who the best team is. A lot of us are graduating. We don't have a good feeling about the way we got kicked out."

In a letter the Commandoes submitted for publication that invited the new champs to play, the Commandoes offered to supply a new 16-inch softball for the game and wrote, "surely the captains of the two teams can agree on umpires for the game."

In the letter, the former champs promised to make available its team roster to be checked out by the team that wins the IM championship in order to satisfy any doubts as to the eligibility of any member of the Commandoes.

"This game should provide some excitement to anyone that enjoys softball, because it will be between two very fine and respected local teams," the letter said.

"Our team was the preseason pick to win the tournament, and we honestly feel we can beat any team in the tournament," it said. "Hopefully, our challenge will be accepted."

Gold 'Bo, Sig Tau Gamma to meet in IM softball finals

By Lee Feinswog
Student Writer

Gold 'Bo will face Sigma Tau Gamma at 4 p.m. Thursday in the men's intramural 16 inch softball championship game at Evergreen Park.

Gold 'Bo advanced to the finals by defeating a tough Legal Eagles team by a 14-13 score, scoring seven runs in the bottom of the fifth and three more in the sixth.

Sigma Tau Gamma beat the Bench, 16-9, in the second game. After defeating a strong Pumping Iron team Tuesday, Sig Tau was still hot against the Bench, leading most of the way.

In the sixth inning of the first game the Eagles led 13-11, but a two-out, two-run inside the park home run by second baseman Bob Kolovany tied the score. Bill Noll reached base with a single and scored on Mike King's single that was misplayed in the outfield.

Andy McSheffery, pitcher for Gold 'Bo, praised the play of his teammates.

"Our infield had a damn good game. It was a typical Gold 'Bo game. We started out slow and finished up fast," he said.

Ed Quinn, captain of the winners, felt his outfield played "sloppy" in the early part of the game to make it closer than it should have been.

McSheffery, 24, is almost a youngster on his team. After retiring the side in order in the top of the seventh, he and the rest of the "old men" were going to "go to bed and take some Seretan," he said.

The Bench scored three times in the top half of the first, but Sig Tau answered with five in the bottom half in the second game. Sig Tau scored in every inning but the fifth, and iced the game with four runs in the sixth.

Wayne Tate, captain of Sig Tau, explained his teams success.

"We're a close-knit group. We play together, and we try not to get down on each other too hard."

Tate realizes his team is the underdog in the championship game.

"They have a lot of power—but we have a lot of speed." They may be better on paper, but if we play our game, we can beat anybody.

Legal Eagle rightfielder Buzz Chostner flinches as he prepares to slide into third base in Wednesday's semifinal IM softball game with Gold Bo.

Chostner beat the throw to third baseman Gary Rebout, but Gold Bo advanced to Thursday's finals with a 14-13 win. (Staff photo by Chuck Fishman)

The good, the bad and the Chicago Cubs

By Scott Burnside
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

A final column of the semester should be a time of summing up, totaling the pluses and forgetting about the minuses.

One of the more recent pluses has been the resurgence of the Los Angeles Dodgers. They were my pick to win the National League championship and for a while it looked a little shaky.

However, the Dodgers have won ten in a row, but they've had one thing going for them—the Chicago Cubs. It never hurts to play the Cubs come into town when you're in the midst of beefing up the win column.

Three home games with the Cubbies, despite the heroic antics of Rick Monday, can do wonders for any team. Now if we can find some way to schedule them into Comiskey Park, the White Sox could have a chance.

Speaking of the White Sox, it just goes to prove the popular advertising adage of "You can't fool mother nature." Mother nature knows a good team when she sees one and she has been doing her best to drown the Sox.

One baseball team that hasn't been drowned is the Saluki baseball team, although they've had their share of patsies on the schedule. Scheduling is a difficult task and it's hard to get a team the caliber of Missouri every weekend.

Baseball is probably the only sport at SIU which gives the fan a better than even break. Not only are most of the games at home, but they're free.

On the negative side, there is a lack of fan support for some of the teams, both major and minor sports.

It seems like SIU fans, like many others around the country, enjoy supporting a winner, but if you lose a few or if your sport isn't major the support just isn't there.

Shots by Scott

Basketball is perhaps the best supported sport on campus, but even in a year which saw the team almost make it to the NCAA regionals, the SIU Arena was never filled.

The biggest sports crowd of the year in the Arena was for a high school game.

In minor sports it's worse. The wrestling team, which was ranked nationally was lucky when it drew over 200 fans. Other sports were scheduled after basketball game in order to obtain some of the fan overflow.

This is nothing new and certainly not unique to SIU. Nobody supports minor sports across the country to any great extent.

In women sports it's even worse. Many of their teams were highly competitive in different sports this year, but it's always the same crowd, game after game. The majority of the crowd is made up of coaches and administrators in the athletic department, players from other teams, and friends or boyfriends of the participants.

Things will change for the better in women's sports, because it's their time up at the financial bat. Women sports programs will continue to grow, because school administrators and legislative officials can't ignore them any more.

As things get better women's sports will suffer some of things men have been going through such as intensive recruiting, competing for other things rather than the sport itself and athletic specialization.

However, that's in the future and these types of predictions may not come true. So now's a good time to investigate women's sports and discover the high level of competition that is going on.

There are many other positive factors about this year's sports, for example the surprising play of the Saluki basketball team.

They were supposed to shrivel up and disappear with the departure of Joe Meriweather. With the signing of a program-full of excellent freshmen, Coach Paul Lambert turned out a highly competitive team.

In fact, this year's team was in some ways better than the squads of the past couple of years. A fan never knew who was going to be hot on a given night, plus the teams used to sit around and wait for Meriweather to do the scoring.

The swimming team produced some fine meets, both the men's and women's. Southern's track team has been superb the few times they've been visible to the student body. And of course there's the football team.

While the football team didn't cross too many goal lines, the games were always exciting. And it always amazed me during football season, no matter large the loss the weekend before, how optimistic and positive the team members were the next week. The attitude on the team was surprising, at least on the surface, and for this I hope they win everything this fall.

The final plus of the story is that "Shots by Scott" will be back this summer for the final time. With very few university sports scheduled for the summer, I'm hoping to pay attention to some of the sports that don't get any attention, and hopefully deserve some ink.

So if anybody is involved with a recreation, club, individual, or outdoor sport please contact me this summer at the newspaper.
